The following program has been arranged in connection with the visit of the warships:

Today at 4 p. m. Commander Frank Marble and other officers of the Vermont will pay a formal visit to Mayor Lee at City Hall. They will be met at the city wharf by several automobiles and the Coast Artillery band and escorted to City Hall.

At 9 o'clock this evening the officers of the Vermont and Etruria will be entertained at the University

Tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock 150 Italian blue jackets and 300 American sallors will be landed at Steeplechase Island where they will be entertained with a picnic, band concerts, dancing and fireworks.

Monday morning at 11 o'clock Commander Marble and Capt. Count Casalino and their officers will be received at the office of the Mayor, in the City Hall, in the presence of the Italian Colonial committee, where Editor James V. Massey of Il Sole will present the commander of each vessel with handsome silk flags.

At 3 o'clock Monday afternoon the American warship will land 300 American blue jackets for parade, and the Etruria will land 150 men to parade.

Commander Marble said that the men, would be very glad to get shore leave and asked Mayor. Lee if, therewas any objection to shore parties being landed. The Mayor said therewas not. As for a parade, the commander said it would be fine pratice for the parade to be given in comection with the Hudson-Fuiton or ebration. He would have given a parade this afternoon but Mr. Jackson and the Mayor thought that it was rather short notice and that it would be appreciated better by the school children if it was held on Monday. WELCOME TO ETRURIA

The Italians of Bridgeport take a just pride in the presence in these waters of the Italian cruiser Etruria, and in the fact that her commander, Count Leonardo di Casolina, his officers and men, are their guests and the guests of the people of Bridgeport. It is to be hoped that the distinguished visitors will find their stay in this leading manufacturing city of Connecticut at once pleasant and profitable, and that the ties which hold the United States and Italy in bonds of mutual friendship will be strengthened by the intercourse. There are in the city of Bridgeport some 5,000 men, women and children who were either born in Italy, or who are the offspring, in the first generation here, of those born in Italy.

The Latin element, as any may perceive, is destined to be largely infused into the earlier population. and it is to be the fate of the oldest empire-republic of historical record to contribute to the republic which Columbus made possible some millions of her posterity before the balance of the nations is adjusted. Italy has already made large contributions to the United States which are embodied in the laws, the institutions, the art and the literature of this country. The Senate was a Roman institution. It has been adopted by that distinguishing name by the nation and the several States. Possibly the franchise itself, the vote through which the citizen exercises his governing power, is borrowed directly from the Roman system. No man in the United States can be deemed to know the law of the land unless he is familiar with the Roman law. The Corpus Juris Civilis is the foundation of the private law among English speaking peoples. There is scarcely a school of higher learning in which students are not required to be familiar with "The Divina Comedia" of Dante, and the writings of that group of men of genius who, with Dante, gave form and permanence to the Italian tongue. Neither is the story of art complete without a recital of the accomplishments of the Latin race.

Those who fear that the character of this people will be injuriously affected by the inrush of European peoples, which has taken place in the last 20 years and is still continuing, have only to scrutinize the past of the Latin race to put such thoughts behind them, at least so far as the Italian graft Twenty centuries ago the pressure of population upon the soil made Rome seek an outlet for her children. Her legions brought opportunity to Roman citizens and civilization to other peoples and made the City of Seven Hills mistress of the world. The new westward march of the Latins is peaceful. but it proceeds from the same cause. In Italy the population as elsewhere in Europe is so numerous that it outruns, under present political and economic systems, the sustaining power of the land. It is not strange that America, in which the pressure of population upon the soil will not be felt for many years to come, should be the goal of all those Europeans who hope, in a new land, to better their conditions. Let none fear that injury to the nation and its ideals will in any considerable period of time result from this great westward movement of the inhabitants of Europe, especialy from that part of the movement which is represented by the Italians. Not the weakest, but the strongest of the men and women of alien populations arrive on the immigrant ship. Let he who believes otherwise reflect upon the amount of initiative and fortitude involved in a decision to leave the city or the town of one's birth to seek opportunity in a strange place, among people who speak the same language. Think, then, how strong must be the souls and brave the hearts of those who leave their own country to cross the seas into a country in which the institutions are not the same, and in which even the tongue is different. The Etruria is welcome!

RAILROAD COMPANY DISCHARGES O'BRIEN WHO SAVED EXPRESS

O'Brien Declares that His Attempt at Suicide Was Merely a Practical Joke

Misfortune has pursued Michael O'Brien, the man whose heroism saved the Boston express from dashing into the open draw at the railroad bridge across the Pequonnock river. His nerves appear to have been badly shaken by his experience during the time that he feared the heavy train would plunge headlong against the great iron draw, to be wrecked with fearful loss of life. He has been disfearful loss of life. He has been discharged from his position by the company for which he performed so signal a service. This is because of the story that he attempted suicide last week by taking carbolic acid.

O'Brien said to a representative of the Farmer yesterday that he bought a bottle of carbolic acid of Clerk John Flynn at Jennie Hamilton's drug store.

DE LANEY WRITES WARNING

What was almost an attempted abduction occurred yesterday at the plant of the Bryant Electric Co., when an effort was made to carry away Margaret' Hughes, an orphan, about 15 years of age, by her aunt, Mrs. James Nagle, of 33 Clinton avenue, and two other aunts of the girl, all of whom are very much incensed because the probate court took their niece from the home of Mrs. Nagle where she had been living and placed her with Mrs. Patrick McCormick of 5 Lee avenue. The girl was taken from her aunt after the treatment given her by Mrs. Nagle had been told to the judge of the probate court in language which almost moved those who heard it to tears. Mrs. Nagle, with the other women went to the factory and asked to see the girl. Supt. HUSBAND OF AGED BRIDE IN COURT

Yale Law Student, Who Married Hartford Woman, Charged with Perjury

UNDER BOND OF $1,000

(Special from United Press.) Hartford, Sept. 18 .- "The course of true lover never runs smooth." This old adage was firmly impressed on the mind of Charles R. Goddard, a Yale student, and the youthful husband of when he was arraigned in the police court to-day on the charge of perjury. The charge is based on the fact that when Goddard secured his marriage license last August, he is alleged to have sworn that the age of his bride-to-be was 36 instead of 70.

The case was continued until a week from to-day under a bond of $1,000, which was furnished by Judge Gafney of New Britain. of New Britain.

Since the marriage of the couple on Sept. 1, their path has been rather a hard one to travel. Goddard, who is but 21 years of age, met his bride while he was peddling books during while he was peddling books during the summer to secure funds to complete his course at Yale. They fell desperately in love with each other and were married. The first snag in their happiness came on Sept. 9. when E. A. Treat, the widow's son, applied to the probate court to have a conservator appointed for his mother's estate, said to be worth $40,000, claiming that she could not have been in her right mind when she married so young a man. The decision is pending.

The climax of their troubles, however, came last night when the young husband was arrested on the perjury charge, and despite the earnest pleadings of his aged wife, was dragged away to jail. She offered bond but this was refused and he was compelled to remain in the cell all night.

While Very Little Hope Is Entertained for His Recovery His Physicians Have Not Abandoned Hope Entirely.

(Special from United Press.) Rochester, Minn., Sept. 18.-Though his physicians declared this morning that he has only a short time to live, Gov. John A. Johnson is making a game fight for his life. At noon his condition was extremely critical while this morning he was so low that his secretary, Frank Day, was notified at Minneapolis that death was only a matter of minutes and Lieut.-Gov. Born In East Bridgeport He Was An Altar Boy In St. Mary's

News reached here to-day that Reve Father Francis Toolan, rector of the Catholic church at Newport, N. IX. where he has been stationed for the past 17 years, has been promoted to the pastorate of the parish of the Sacred Heart, at Albany, N.Y. Father Toolan is a native of this city. He was a member of St. Mary's parish where as a boy he served mass.

His parents lived in Booth street and as a lad Father Toolan showed a marked predilection for study. After graduating from the public scho attended college and made his theo-logy at Mt. St. Mary's, Emmetsburg. He was ordained a priest at Troy seminary in December, 1885, and was appointed a curate at the church he now becomes rector of.

now becomes rector of.

Following his service as curate in Albany he was made pastor at Newport which included the mission of Middleville. He was an indefatigable worker and he soon won the heartlest co-operation of his flock. As a result he constructed a handsome church in Newport which will stand as a monument to his zeal and industry. He also built a mission church at Middleville. In both places he was deservedly beloved.
